

Our activity at the Baby Hospital

In the last 3 months, it's all about being new at the baby hospital!

We painted the play room with a new simple coat (it was a bit over crowded with all those paintings).

For more significant progress, we decided to hire, and hired a new speech therapist to work with three of our toddlers; also our occupational therapist started to work full time now! The cuties are doing well, getting lots of attention, and trying new food while making funny faces. :) The number of the babies and toddlers in the hospital increased lately, having new babies and some of the previous ones that we already knew were brought back by their parents.
